

The Protest Priest Kicks Off Campaign to End ChildKilling in Florida

Gov. Ron DeSantis visited a replica of a Holocaust cattle car recently. During his press conference, he said we will never forget the Nazi Holocaust of Jews. The Campaign to End Childkilling in Florida prays the governor truly recognizes the American Holocaust that has cost the lives of 200,000 Florida babies in the last three years.

Why are there 56 abortion mills in the conservative red state of Florida? Why are more than 74,500 preborn babies being aborted, 42,000 of them chemically, in a state with a Catholic, prolife governor? And are abortion providers skirting Florida's fetal tissue disposal laws that make it illegal to flush the remains of aborted babies down the toilet?

These are the questions Fr. Stephen Imbarrato, the Protest Priest, wants to ask Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis.

“I am appalled that there are so many abortion centers here, few restrictions, little oversight, and no trigger laws in our state if Roe v. Wade is overturned,” he said. “I moved here because of DeSantis’ leadership in all other things, but I can’t stand by while 74,500 babies are mass murdered in 56 killing centers and say nothing or do nothing.”

To call attention to this deplorable situation, Fr. Imbarrato is launching the Campaign to End Childkilling in Florida. The campaign, scheduled to launch on Jan. 22, the anniversary of Roe v. Wade, will include billboards and a tour of many of Florida's abortion mills on both coasts and the Panhandle where Fr. Imbarrato will hold prayer vigils and the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, if possible, to end the scourge of abortion. He is also hoping to allocate part of his budget to donate to at least one or more Catholic pregnancy resource centers in the state. Father wants to highlight the significance of pregnancy resource centers in the fight against abortion. He also hopes that his tour will culminate with a rally at the Florida State Capitol in Tallahassee during the legislative session in February. Learn more at protestchildkilling.com and watch Fr. Fr. Imbarrato kicks off the Campaign to End Childkilling at the Presidential Women's Center in West Palm Beach.

"I would like Gov. DeSantis to speak at a rally," Father said. "I support him, but we need to educate him about what's going on at these abortion mills, including the chemical abortions where the remains are possibly being flushed down the toilet and polluting our water."

Abortion mills prescribe women RU-486 abortion pills and in many cases, may be sending them home to chemically abort their babies without instructing them on how to safely dispose of the medical waste. Our fear is that the aborted remains may be flushed down the toilet where they can contaminate water supplies, wastewater, lakes, and more. There are laws enforcing the proper disposal of medical waste and we are concerned that no one is enforcing these laws, Father said.

These laws include Florida Statute 64E-16.001 which requires health care providers to "inform their home user clients verbally and in writing" how to dispose of medical waste "generated in the home."

"Over 600,000 females attend university in Florida," Father said. "Mail order chemical abortions are legal and approved by the FDA. It is quite easy to connect the dots and see the dangers: dead babies improperly handled and disposed of after death."

The goal? Ban all abortions.

To achieve that goal, Father proposes the following:

- Pass an abortion trigger law banning all abortions if the U.S. Supreme Court overturns Roe v. Wade
- Support a Heartbeat Bill similar to the one in Texas if Roe v. Wade is not overturned
- Provide strict oversight of the abortion industry and enforce existing means of closing abortion mills

"Gov. DeSantis needs to say, 'I want this abortion ban on my desk, I want this Heartbeat Bill on my desk, and I want to sign them. I want my attorney general or the agency for healthcare administration to enforce this medical waste law," Father said. "We need the governor's voice to help get this legislation passed. Gov. DeSantis, please, the babies need you."

How can you help Fr. Imbarrato?

Pray and fast. Then start reaching out.

Contact Speaker of the House Chris Sprowls, 727-793-2810, chris.sprowls@myfloridahouse.gov, and Senate President Wilton Simpson, 352-688-5077, simpson.wilton@flsenate.gov

- Let them know that 56 abortion facilities responsible for deaths of 75,000 babies is an outrage and ask them what they plan to do about it.

- Ask them if they're committed to passing a Heartbeat Bill similar to the one in Texas if Roe isn't overturned or law banning abortion if Roe is overturned.

Contact Gov. Ron DeSantis, 850-717-9337, 850-717-9249 or 850-488-5603, governorron.desantis@eog.myflorida.com

- Ask him as a prolife governor what he is doing or planning to do to address these serious issues related to the mass murder of preborn babies in Florida.

Contact Attorney General Ashley Moody, 850-414-3990, citizenservices@myfloridalegal.com

- Ask what her office is doing to ensure abortion facilities and abortionists are obeying all Florida statutes.

- Ask why the abortion industry isn't being held accountable for violating Florida statues on the proper disposal medical waste and endangering our water.

Contact the Florida Agency for Health Care Administration, floridahealth.gov, or 850-245-4444

- Ask for the latest inspection report for the abortion facility nearest you and find out who has jurisdiction over the proper disposal of medical waste from chemical abortions

There's a lot to be done, but we can do this. As Father always says, go out there and give them Heaven!
